Top 50 demons list gd 2020

How it works:Remember: this is a mobile-based list. These levels may not be in the order that computer gamers want to have them. The levels are arranged in the heaviest of the simplest, heaviest at the top, the simplest at the bottom. Based on the records, who beat the level first, the most recent winners are to the bottom. All records above 60hz will not be recorded on the list unless the level is already on the list (Add &gt;60hz records to new levels will not work very well because the team is made only 60hz mobile players)LDM (Low Detail Mode) versions of levels are accepted, as long as it does not affect the difficulty of the level. Not all devices can handle multiple laggy as well. Previously, mobile players (DiscJoker, DiamondSplash, GeometryJosh, Technical, Gizbro, Stilluetto) remain on the list, but only mobile records matter. Illegal records will be removed and held by that person along with other information. Since 12/15/17 is only level, they have demons at one point or another will be added. The force smooth fix or any other way the device slows down will not include the record in the list. Although it is technically mobile, playing mobile with a mouse will not get its record on the list because mouse have different delays. The level will be placed no more than 2 months after completion if the opinion is not decided during this time, so the levels will not be left out of the list for a significant period of time.9. The official Demon List (or Official Demons List) is the creation of a community that ranks different demonic levels of Geometry Dash in difficulty order. The official list was originally a topic of game forums, but ended up on an independent website and has been receiving updates since April 2015. Currently, the list classifies Tartaras as the toughest demonic level in the game. Overview The official demon list previously organized a total of 50 demon levels and was expanded to 100 in October 2017 and 150 in June 2019, and divided the list into one main and expanded list, each with 75 levels. The transition of the eventual community to higher refresh rate monitors has allowed people to complete levels that update frequency limits. List The main list and the extended list contain subjectively ranked demonic levels that are As a result of the average mood of the players given the time that they had to put in the level and the skill required to fill them in normal mode. As a method of management, the lists are divided into two parts to separate the most difficult in-game levels, which require a higher skill for the overall and average hard demon levels. The inherited list contains daemons that have captured the list but have attached the new levels. The inherited list does not follow the order and receives updates when new daemons are placed. When a player beats a level that has a number of spots up the list of the previous hardest, it's known in the community as a jump. One of the biggest jumps belongs to nCaT when it defeated Thinking Space (#8), as the previous heaviest was Bloodbath (#132), jumping 124 spots on the list. itriple beat Celestial Force (the previous heaviest was cataclysm (#222)), which means jumped about 180 spots on the list. Staff on the official Demon list are led by a handful of people also known as list editors and helpers. They have a public Discord server in which people can participate in reviews of the list via polls that sometimes post their announcements. To submit a record, you must meet the following criteria: Demons rules must be rated before they can be added to the list. Levels that receive a hacked update, changing their difficulty, are added to the legacy section of the list. If a demonoid gets a hacked update before being list-worthy, it will not get added. A demon whose original certificate was hacked is still on the list. Submission rules must be legal and uploaded to a streaming platform. The publication and legal transfer of illegal recordings removes the submitter's records from the list. Illegitimate records include, but are not limited to, speed hacks, noclips, autos, nerfs, macros, deraxes, etc. since May 25, 2020, the FPS Bypass tool has been adopted until players go beyond the 300 fps limit. Records must be level in normal mode, and the live version of the level, or the corresponding error fixed/low-level copy of the mentioned level. Please read the bug fix and LDM guidelines. The record holder must the percentage requirement of the level to be added to that level. Clicks must be added to add videos that you submit. General guidelines Checks are not counted as records on the list, but Points. If you're in a group where people beat levels in the same channel, records are temporarily removed from the list. Bug fix and LDM guidelines Records that use built-in LDMs at the level are always eligible. Records on the corresponding LDM instances of the levels are eligible. Please contact the list moderator if you are not sure which decorations can be removed or which ones cannot be removed. In general, the LDM instance cannot remove decorations that obstruct a player's vision, blind transitions, flashes or boss fights. Citing the first guideline, if the previously specified decorations are removed from the level of built-in LDM though, it's perfectly ok to use it. Records on correct instances of different update frequency levels are eligible. Please contact the list moderator if you are not sure what it is or not an error.
